Matching Infrastructure Funds HSC Guidelines

Maintenance of a world-class research enterprise requires excellent infrastructure, instrumentation, and programs. To the extent possible, these should be provided by external funding. However, many funding mechanisms require matching institutional funds. Even when matching funds are required, the external funding is still highly valued because it is better to get some external support than to cover all of the costs internally, and because external peer-review provides assessment and validation of excellence.